MONOPOLISTS.

Yes my son, monopoly is a bad thing, and I am glad to see the people of this Coganiting themselves against the monopolies that are crushing the life out of honest and worthy competition. There are several monopolies in this afflictel land. Some of them are worth millions. All of them want to be worth twice as much as that. Vanderbilt and Gould are famous monopolists. The Western Union Telegraph Company is a gigantic monopoly. And there are several other monopolies.

When you employ three hundred, or thirty, or ten workmen and pay them with your money, and a committee waits on you to tell you that if you do not discharge a certain workman, a good mechanic, sober, quiet faithful, whose only fault is that he belongs to no labor organization, the other two hundred and ninety-nine, or twenty-nine, or nine will quit work in the midst of your busy season; you are in the clutches of a monopoly-a monopoly as grinding, grasping and cruel in its way as the Western Union. It is called a trade union, but it is a monopoly.

When a committee of workmen come to you and say that, as you have a great many contracts half-finished, and as men are scarce and hard to get, and as they have you on the hip, they will strike in ten minutes unless you allow them to set their own pay at the highest figures, then that is a monopoly that acts just precisely as the Western Union does when it absorbs a rival line and tells you that as there is only one office in this town they will raise the rate a little.

When you tell a workman that times are dull and the market stagnant, and that you don't need them anyhow and they can work on half-time or none, then you are the monopoly-that is, you are the striker. A monopoly is a chronic striker. It is always watching a chance to pinch you and squeeze just a little more work or money out of you for its own benefit.

The tramp who airs his rags at your kitchen door while his breakfast is preparing is a monopolists. He knows that you hate him and don't want to feed him, but he knows that you are afraid, if you don't feed him, he will set fire to the stable some night. So he makes you give him a breakfast for nothing.

sheat until he can squeeze $1 40 per bushel out of you for it, not because it is better wheat than you got for 90 cents, but because wheat is so scarce, is as mean a monopolist as there is in the lot. Jay Gould couldn't give him any points.

The man who charges 40 cents a pound for very ordinary butter just because the roads are so bad the people who are selling their butter in the villages for 20 cents can't get to the city with it, he, too, is a monopolist. When you buy a jar of lard of him, poke into it with a ramrod to feel for a bowlder.

And the lady who burns steak and monopolist. You spent six weeks looking for her, she stays with you two weeks, breaks $8 worth of china and glass, loses $2 worth of spoons and forks, collects 86 for wages and goes off, with twenty-four hours warning, to a place that offers her more china to smash and 83 50 a week for smashing it.

You see, my son, in looking about for a monopoly to denounce or demolish, our naturally envious disposition leads us to assail the monopolies that are more fortunate than our own. We clamor against Vanderbilt and Jay Gould, and Western Union and fail to observe the smaller monopolies, that differ from the great ones, not in spirit, but only in wealth and power.-[R. J. Burdette.

The term "masher," which has been regarded as a slang expression, employed by the careless for an elegant young man, has been rescued from the vulgar position by Charles Mackay, who pronounces it both appropriate and antique. It is de-rived from the Gaelic maise, pronounced masher, and signifies fine, handsome, and was originally applied to a dandy.

THE PIOCHE WLKLY RECORD.

VOL. XXVII. PIOCHE, NEV., SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1883.

NO. 12

OVER THREE PRECIPICES.

(Davenport (Inwa) Gazotte.]

One of the most incredible of wonderful accidents or adventures that can possibly happen to a man and leave life in him is that experienced by Peter F. DR. RUSH'S REGULATOR, De Witt, and who is well-known in Day euport, where he once resided several months. Peter Gates is superintending the work of the mine of the Cunnison Mining and Exchange Company of this city, which is in Treasure Mountain, Gunnison county, Colorado. The great altitude of the mine brings winter about it very early? As early as the middle of September snow storms commenced. Peter writes that he left the cabin with his report and vouchers ready for mailing, an overcoat belonging to one of the men and a gunny sack filled with clothing, and all strapped together on his back, all in "apple pie" order-and then-

"I fell over the cliff on my way down. I intended it to be my last trip for several months, but it came near being my last in fatc. I had gotton one hundred feet above the cabin when a snow slide turned loose, knocking me instantly from the trail. For the first four hundred or five hundred feet I struck the ground but four or five times-and my last fall from the top of the precipice to its bottom was about one hundred and twenty feet. It seems incredible that I should have tumbled down three successive precipices without being killed; but everything was in my favor. The pack which I was carrying and the snow which I went down with helped break my fall. I am badly bruised about the hips and body, but with rest and a lower altitude the doctor thinks I will come out al right in a month or so."

The letter was written at Crested Butte. Mr. Doe says that to one who has seen the place of this accident Peter's escape is a piece of luck that may be termed miraculous. The cliff which Peter was swept from has an almost perpendicular height of a thousand feet from the bottom of the precipice, and it was the great mass of snow which had accumulated on its sides that broke Peter's fall every hundred feet and then went on down with him to the next one. In January last a man was swept off the trail by an avalanche in a similar manner and dropped into the abyss a thousand feet below, and the body has never been recovered.

TO PROSPECTORS AND CLAIM OWNERS.

We quote the following timely and sensible remarks from the Prescott Courier:

Don't set too high a value on your prospects.

Don't count much on the result of an assay of a piece of "best rock." Results of samples give better satisfaction. If you have free gold ore, pick out your best rock and arastra it.

If a good talker comes along and tells you that he has an aunt in the States with a stocking full of money, who desires to invest in your mine, don't give him a bond. He's fooling thee.

If you have a good prospect of "striking it," don't fool away your time at the store; you'll never hit it in that way. Work is what tells.

Don't wear yourself and boots out by clambering mountains, hunting for richer chips china for you at $3 a week, is a things. Let ex-ministers, boat-swains and counter jumpers do that. Have your ores worked at home, if vou can.

Should you read in a religious paper that Shieffen has struck rich gold diggings in Alaska, don't go off there halfcocked. The climate is icy, and your toes as well as your hopes would be apt to be nipped.

Have a home, if it should be but a pine log cabin. Have a garden spot, a cow, some chickens and a photograph of your intended.

Should you run short of funds, stop work in your own claim and work for some other fellow, until you shall have a small raise.

Don't be too anxious to sell a good mine. Somebody who will want it will come along some day and buy you Don't, under any circumstance, run in debt for grub or tools. If you do your creditor will be likely to snatch you bald-headed when you least expect him to trouble you.
